ADVANTAGES!

When applying for jobs, I prefer to have one-on-one interviews

There are some reasons why I think so.

First, participating in group interviews will require us to argue about various topics with other applicants.

Then, there will be some arguments and disputes. It will make me very nervous.

I am pretty sure, I will freeze or make a slip of the tongue. I'm afraid of competition.

On the other hand, if I have a one-on-one interview,

I will be able to focus on the interviewers' questions and speak calmly.

I can carry on the answer with more confidence.

For example, a few years ago, I took part in an interview for an internship. It was a group interview.

I had a discussion about online marketing with five other applicants.

When I gave my opinion, an applicant refuted my opinion and I was very embarrassed.

And I couldn't say anything more. It was a nightmare.

Therefore, having a one-on-one interview is much better!

ADVANTAGES!

A good work ethic is more important than talent in an employee.
근면함이 재능보다 더 중요하다.

I disagree that a good work ethic is more important than talent.

First, a person with talent invests the same time in his work and produces better results.
Not only does he get things done easily and quickly, but he also comes up with ideas that others don't think about.

Second, no matter how hard you try, there are things that you cannot do without talent.
Specifically, it is hard to become an expert in creative fields such as illustration and program development.

For example, my friend is a computer programmer.

He has natural talent, so he came up with new program ideas during office hours,
and he made very big successes.

Therefore, talent surpasses everything.

KEY VOCAB

invest 투자하다, produce 생산하다, get things done 일을 끝내다, matter 문제, without ~ 없이, specifically 구체적으로, expert 전문가, creative 창의적인, illustration 일러스트레이션,
